

Country:France

Committee:FAO 2

France is the world's sixth largest agricultural producer and the leading agricultural power of the European Union, with approximately one-third of the agricultural land in the European Union. The North of our country is known for its large wheat farms. Dairy products, poultry and apple production are among the main production items of our country. The products produced add richness to the world-famous French cuisine and provide incentives to our farmers in terms of growing quality products.

Our country's valuable contributions to the Agriculture and Food sector from the past have always supported conscious agricultural production and created a role for future generations. Our country has been happy to fulfill its duties in all studies carried out in the past in terms of agricultural projects and effective use of soil resources.

We should point out that; Climate change, which should be considered among the priority issues on the world agenda, will reduce agricultural production and endanger Food Security if precautions are not taken. Today, in order to eliminate the negativities related to climate change, the situation must first be determined with climate change scenarios. Our country is ready to fully fulfill its duty in making these determinations.
