

Agenda: Empowerment of women

Country: UNITED ARAB EMIRATES

We are one of the most economically developed countries. As the UAE, we attach great importance to the field of health in our country. There are important hospitals in our country regarding this field, and in these hospitals, there are many good healthcare professionals and special medical devices to ensure that they are examined in a healthy and beautiful way. At the same time, great importance is given to education in our country. Adults in 2015 The literacy rate was 93.8% As the UAE, it has shown great interest in improving education and research.

The most important problem that women and girls experience in many places and the most important factor underlying the problems they experience is a place where there is no gender equality. Girls, even women who want to study, cannot study for this reason or are condemned to not study, which greatly affects their future. Apart from that, In a place where there is no gender equality, it becomes difficult for women to work, and in many places, more than half of the women do not even work. The place of women in politics is quite small. The reason for this is sometimes the lack of gender equality and sometimes other things can happen, that is, different beliefs and misunderstandings. Women Sometimes, in places where there is no gender equality, women Sometimes they may also be subjected to violence, of course, and the reasons for this may vary. In fact, all of these significantly affect the economic and cultural activities of the country. According to the statement made by the BBC regarding gender equality, the picture is mixed according to the World Economic Forum (WEF). According to the latest Global Gender Gap report published in June 2023, the needle is moving in the right direction, albeit very slowly. According to the report, which looks at the situation in 146 countries, it will take 131 years to reach full equality at the current rate of progress, and no country has yet achieved full gender equality.

As the UAE, we attach importance to the education of women and girls and have made the necessary regulations and investments in our country so that they can receive a more comfortable and productive education. In order for women to work, the UAE offers various programs and incentives to increase women's participation in the workforce. Particularly noteworthy are state-supported entrepreneurship programs and policies that encourage women into business life. Regulations such as flexible working hours and extended maternity leave have been introduced to help women balance business life and family responsibilities. The progress made in the field of women's rights and gender equality in our country, including women's participation in politics, is a reflection of the country's social and economic reforms. From past to present, it is seen that women are more represented in every field, from education to business life, from politics to bureaucracy. The steps taken to combat violence against women also play an important role in ensuring gender equality. However, more efforts are required to achieve full gender equality. The UAE's progress in this regard can also serve as an example for other Gulf countries. This progress in women's rights will contribute to the social and economic development not only of the UAE but of the region in general. We want these developments not only in our country but all over the world.
